"FORGET NOT" URGES PASTOR

REV. GUY L. PRATHER WARNS AGAINST FORSAKING GOD.

DANGER IN PROSPERITY

Pride, Arrogance, Independence Of Creator Sometimes Result, Is Is Declared At Union Service.

"Lest we forget God" was the text from which the Rev. Guy L. Prather, pastor of the First Baptist Church, preached a Thanksgiving sermon last night at the union service of Maryville Protestant churches, held at the First Presbyterian church.

"The text and the subject," the Reverend Mr. Prather said, suggest our greatest blessing—a conscious touch with God. They suggest also a grave danger—that we forget God. They suggest again care and watchfulness on our part to maintain such touch. And it was in the midst of power and success and blessing that such suggestions came to David."

Discussion reasons why God often is forgotten, Mr. Prather said:

"Outward blessing and material prosperity may tend to develop pride and arrogance; extravagance, luxury, and outward show; independence of God and man. Moses warned his people lest their great inheritance in the land of promise may cause them to forget God.

"Our interests in business and pleasure often consume so much time and thought that God is largely crowded out of the life.

"We easily forget lessons not well learned. Some lessons are not easily learned. Our thoughts and ways are often contrary to God and his truth. Remnants of old evils persist. Often we long for the old ways. It is thus hard for us to learn well much of God's truth. It becomes easy also to permit these truths to be dormant, and unuseli for a season, and thus hazy and clouded in our mind."

There are dire results, the pastor warned, if we forget God.

"When Israel forgot God," he pointed out, "it led to idolatry, divisions, immortalities, foreign entanglements, captivity, ruin. 'The wicked shall be turned into hell, with all the nations that forget God.' To forget God always leads to sinful and unhappy ways.

"We thus lose God as a conscious source of help."

Advising his hearers how not to forget God, Mr. Prather continued:

"The Psalmist recounts God's rich blessings upon him. He considers God's gracious ways. He measures God's love by his utmost conceptions of space; 'as the heavens are high above the earth,' 'as far as the east is from the west;' by his utmost conceptions of time, 'from everlasting to everlasting;' and by the deepest emotions of his own heart 'like as a father pitieth his children.' And in a great paean of praise, he calls upon the whole universe of God to bless the Lord.

"Study of God's word and obedience to its precepts will keep us mindful of the Lord. 'Thy word have I laid up in mine heart that I might not sin against thee.'

"God has erected various memorials of his presence. He reveals himself in nature a brief study along any line reveals marvelous intelligence and unfathonable power. In the restless waves that beat ceaselessly upon the shore, in the quiet passages of numberless worlds through limitless space, in the infinite variety of flower and fruit, in the glory of a new day and the enchanting splendor of a sunset, in the bounding hopes of the heart that overtower and shine through every defeat, every disaster, every death.

"God reveals himself in history, in the nations and the civilizations they have fostered, as in the art of Greece, the law of Rome, the religion of Israel. In the growth of freedom and human worth. In the Christ and his touch that cleanses and inspires human life.

"God reveals himself in Christian literature. The Bible is the fruitage of God-given hopes. God has endowed us with marvelous powers, and in the world about us he has interwoven what calls out the delightful exercise of these powers. As the eye looks upon the limitless beauties of nature, as the ear gathers in and enjoys the music of the world, so our hopes after God gathers up and expresses themselves most nobly in our Bible.

"But the Bible is also God's expression of himself in his dealings and hopes

PIANIST HERE ON THURSDAY

E. ROBERT SCHMITZ TO GIVE TWO RECITALS.

ONE OF S. T. C. SERIES

Visiting Artist, Born In Paris, Has Won Distinction There And In America.—Ticket Sale Opens.

E. Robert Schmitz, brilliant French pianist, will give two recitals at the State Teachers College next Thursday. Mr. Schmitz will give a lecture recital at 2:30 p. m., and a concert recital at 8 p. m. This will be one of the numbers on the Winter Artists' Course and Spring Music Festival, which the College is sponsoring this year.

Mr. Schmitz has attained recognition as one of the most outstanding pianists of this period. Born in Paris in 1889, he studied both piano and violin when a boy. Later he confined his activities to the piano and was graduated from the Conservatoire in 1910 with the highest honors.

He came to America in 1919 and since then has been one of the country's leading attractions in the concert field.

Last summer Mr. Schmitz conducted a master's course in piano at Colorado Springs. Thomas H. Annett, piano instructor of the local Conservatory of Music, attended this class and he credits Mr. Schmitz as being a true master of the piano.

Trying A New Policy.

The Artists' Course and Music Festival represents an augmented form of entertainment furnished by the College, according to Uel W. Lamkin, its president. In the past it has been the policy of the College to sponsor an outstanding Music Festival in the spring and to concentrate all efforts toward it. The present idea is to stretch the entertainment over the entire winter and spring and thereby to bring outstanding persons in music, literature and art to Maryville at regular intervals.

There will be nine numbers on the program. A drive for the sale of season tickets was started today. It is being sponsored by the members of the Twentieth Century Club under the direction of Mrs. C. P. Fryer, president. Tickets may also be secured through Charles R. Gardner, director of the Conservatory of Music.

The season ticket sale now on will take the place of the annual solicitation for tickets to the Music Festival. There will be no such sale in the spring, Mr. Lamkin pointed out.

Season reserved seats for the entire series may be secured at Kuchs Bros., free of charge. As an accommodation to ticket holders, it will be possible for them to leave their ticket at Kuchs' and several days prior to each number on the program a reserved seat for that number will be mailed out. This will do away with the ticket holder having to take care of his ticket throughout the winter and spring.

Following is a resume of the series, giving the numbers in order, as outlined in a letter sent out today from Mr. Lamkin's office:

What Is Coming.

"Jean Gros and his French marionettes will be the attraction on February 18. In the world of marionettes Jean Gros is supreme. With his company of puppeteers, he will present two productions in Maryville. At a matinee at 2:30 p. m., the company will present 'The Adventures of Uncle Wiggley,' a screamingly funny puppet play by Howard Garis, author of the famous 'Uncle Wiggily' bedtime stories for

21 FAMILIES GET BASKETS

PUPILS AND WELFARE BOARD SPREAD THANKSGIVING.

ANNUAL REPORT GIVEN

$40.46 Is Donated At Union Service, Bringing Balance to $202.—$908.40 Spent In Year.

Twenty-one needy families in Maryville had Thanksgiving dinners yesterday who probably would have gone without them if it had not been for the Welfare Board and the pupils at Washington school.

It had been suggested to the pupils that they bring contributions of food to school Wednesday. They responded gladly, with potatoes, canned fruit, apples, breakfast food, beans, turnips and other vegetables. These the Welfare Board put into baskets, adding meat, and they were distributed late Wednesday among the twenty-one families who were facing a Thanksgiving with little for which to be thankful.

The Welfare Board made a report last night at the union Thanksgiving service at the First Presbyterian Church, in which the total receipts for the year were shown as $1,070.91 and expenditures $908.40. This report was for the twelve months just closed and not for the board's fiscal year, which closes in the spring. The report was made by Hal Hooker, chairman of the board.

Mr. Hooker reported a balance of $162.51 available for relief work, to which the contribution at the service last night added $40.46.

The board chairman again announced that the greatest need is for money, rather than for clothing, as most of the calls received by the board are for food and fuel. There is a need, however, for clothing and shoes for children. For adults the board believes its present supply of old clothing will be adequate.

The second tag day for the Welfare Board, which was set for last Saturday, was postponed because of unfavorable weather.

"We expect to have it some other time, but later," Mr. Hooker announced today. "We do not want to burden the people any more than we can help."

NAVY PANE IN AIR AGAIN

PN-10 NO. 2, THOUGHT LOST, RESUMES FLIGHT.

BOTH FAIL OF RECORD

Other Ship Is Forced Down on U. S. —Panama Flight Without Equalling Rodgers' Mark.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The United States Naval seaplane PN-10 No. 2, hopped off at 6:55 a. m. today from the Isle of Pines, resuming its interrupted flight to Colon, Panama, from Hampton Roads, Va., according to a daylight radio dispatch this morning.

The PN-10 No. 2 was forced to halt its trip Wednesday when it ran out of oil. It was given a new supply by the U. S. S. Raleigh.

The PN-10 No. 2 passed the U. S. S. Raleigh, posted as a guard ship, 16 miles south of Isle of Pines at 9:05 a. m., Lieutenant Commander Bartlett, commanding the seaplane, reported by radio to the Navy Department here the engines were working perfectly.

As in the case of the late Commander John Rodger's record-breaking flight last year with a PN-9 machine, the Navy's lattest attempt with two PN-10 planes also fell short, happily, of disaster.

With Colon, C. Z., 2,060 miles away, as their objective, the PN-10 Nos. 1 and 2, manned by brilliant crews, left Norfolk, Va., late Tuesday. Plane No. 2, in charge of Lieut. Cob, H. T. Bartlett, the flight commander, was forced down by fuel exhaustion 1,185 miles away Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines. No. 1, developing lubrication trouble, proceeded 213 miles farther before a broken oil feed pipe compelled it to come down in the Caribbean.

Whether the other machine, in charge of Lieuts. Byron J. Connell and Lawrence W. Curtin, will proceed to Colon remains to be determined.

Both planes fell short of Commander Rodger's record of 1,841 miles, established when fuel exhaustion blocked his attempt, in September, 1925, to reach Haweii, and started a desperate search that lasted four days over a wide expanse of silent waters before he was found. A similar situation threatened to develop in the Caribbean Wednesday night, when the PN-10 No. 1 had been missing fourteen and a half hours, but as midnight approached, the navy's anxiety was relieved by a report from the cruiser Cincinnati that she picked up the plane twenty-two milesoff its course at 9:35 o'clock and was standing by. She was ordered to tow the plane to the most convenient port.

Commander Bartlett's mishap apparently lacked the thrills that befell the other plane, for, after landing at Nueva Gerona, he was able to obtain enough fuel to proceed to Siguana Bay to await the Raleigh. Although prevented from establishing the distance record he sought, he will be able to make a technical report of the flight, its other objective, which is expected to prove of great value.

SEARCH FOR BODIES CONTINUES IN THREE STATES.

ARKANSAS HARD HIT

Series of Cyclones Also Strikes Parts of Missouri and Louisiana.—Church Down on Wedding.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 26.—While rescue workers continued their search for additional bodies in the devastated area in Arkansas, Missouri and Louisiana, laid waste by a series of cyclones last night, a check-up today placed the known dead at 39, the injured list at 138, the missing at 10, and the property loss in excess of $1,250,000.

Heber Springs, Ark., a little resort town, was the hardest hit. It has a population of less than 1,750 and it has 18 known dead and 50 known injured.

The gale lashed Moscow, Ark., while a marriage ceremony was being performed in the Good Hope Baptist Church and leveled the structure. It carried a negro school 50 feet, unroofed buildings, tore down trees and cut a swath 200 yards wide through the country side.

The community is littered with dead livestock and debris of all sorts.

The little town of Gould, Ark., is cut off from communication with the outside world and it is not known whether there was any loss of life there.

"Hall Money" Again Mentioned in Trial

Witness in Hall-Mills Case Also Says He Was Offered $100 by State's Star Witness.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 26.—Talk of "Hall money" seeped into the Hall-Mills murder trial once more today.

George Sipel, a farmer, called to the witness stand at the opening of the afternoon session, admitted authorship of three letters written to Mrs. Hall and her attorneys after he had become a witness in the first investigation of the case.

"I could have your attorney agree to almost anything," one letter said. "What do you mean by that?" Sipel was asked.

"I had heard talk of witnesses getting Hall money," Sipel answered.

Previously today, he had testified Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, had offered him $100 to corroborate her story.

Miss Vera MacLeod of Otho, Iowa, spent Thanksgiving here the guest of Mrs. Lottie Omgn and Mrs. A. R. Perrin. She will return to Otho Sunday.

WOULD PUT IT UP TO COURT

SENNATOR WALSH DENIES AMERICAN ADHERENCE HOPELESS

JURISDICTION DISPUTED

Chief Difficulty Is Over Question Whether League Council Must Be Unanimous In Submitting Questions.

Washington, Nov. 26—The present difficulty over American adherence to the World Court should be referred to the court itself for a decision, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, Montana, declared here today. He answered the statement of President Coolidge in Kansas City that the World Court matter is a closed book so far as this country is concerned.

The difficulty centers around the question whether the League council can submit matters to the court by unanimous or majority vote.

The United States Senate took the position when it adopted the resolution alleging American adherence to the court, that unanimous consent of all member nations was required to submit a matter to the court. So it put in a provision that no question in which this country claims an interest could be submitted without its consent. Later, when the League council considered the American resolution, some member nations took the position that the council might submit questions to the court by a majority vote. The suggestion was made that acceptance of the American veto provision would give the United States more authority than other member nations.

"The resolution adopted by the Senate was intended merely to safeguard this country's equal rights, and no more than the rights enjoyed by other member nations," Walsh, who led the battle in the Senate for the adherence resolution, told the United Press.

Girl's Diploma Fight Taken to High Court

Student Accused of Cheating Wins in Kansas District Tribunal, but School Board Appeals.

Eureka, Kan., Nov. 26.—Kathleen Ryan, who fought and won a case against the Eureka school board for her high school diploma, will have to fight the case in the highest court of Kansas. The board, at a special meeting, decided to appeal to state supreme court, after losing in the district court.

Miss Ryan, a high school student, was charged with "cheating" in a high school examination in history and refused credit for her work. She was denied the right to graduate with her class. She denied the charge and was given another and more strict examination, which she passed with flying colors. Still the school authorities refused to give her the coveted honor.

Through her parents, the girl appealed to the district court. Judge Benson, before whom the case was tried, heard testimony until 1 o'clock in the morning. He decided that in view of the fact that the girl passed the second examination, she was entitled to credit and her diploma.

Now the school board has voted to file an appeal.

House of David's Secret Code Found

Document Is Believed To Have Been Written by "King" Benjamin Purnell, Now Facing Girls' Charges.

Lansing, Mich, Nov. 26.—Tucked away in the proverbial "musty files" of the attorney general's office here is a document believed to be the "secret code" of the House of David of Benton Harbor as written by "King" Benjamin Purnell, who is now waiting trial on three counts of criminal assault against former girl members of his "flock."

Warning that "the world is watching Israel" the alleged code embraces virtually every phase of activity of the Benton Harbor cult and admonishes all members to be "modest and unassuming before the Gentiles. (Purnell assumed the titles of "Seventh Angel of the Israelites.") Referring specifically to female members of the colony the "code" declared:

"Girls I further warn you against pleasure seeking and selecting certain company and becoming thick. The hatching is not good."

Further references to conduct of female members of the colony was seen in the passage which read: "If asked do you believe in having children, answer 'yes,' but do not give tour 'key' away. Do nothing but answer. Treat them with great respect. Do not get smart."

"Keep my law and thou shalt live," read another passage. "Jews and gentiles are all under sin, therefore they shall reap death, the wages of sin."

The alleged "code" is a part of the state record in litigation in which the attorney general's office has been interested, it has been explained.

for man. It is the noblest book in origin and in worth. It needs no defense. It stands upon its own testimony and worth in man's progress and joy.

"God reveals himself in Christian experience, in peace of mind with reference to sin, to God, and to the future; in an influence of power and conscious ability to dare and do, as Peter on Pentecost; power to endure the ills of life; power to overcome our own evils and climb to a higher life.

"Out of such knowledge and experience," the Reverend Mr. Prather declared, "we speak that we do know' with assurance of the truth. Such experience alone opens the eyes of the heart to see God in all his various manifestations. The Indian has the same heavens, the same flowers, the same bounties, yet knows not God. Through Christ, the Christian life is more full and free and hopeful.

"If we forget not God, he will not forget us. He will stand by us in joy and sorrow, in youth and strength and old age, as we journey along life's high way and we come to the end."

To make custards

you pour the scalded milk on the eggs and sugar gradually — a little at a time. Thus you control the process. Hills Bros. follow this principle of control in roasting coffee. Only a little at a time is roasted, and the result is a matchless flavor.

Control in roasting coffee is just as essential as in cooking

CONTROLLED Roasting—Hills Bros.' patented process—calls for the same exactness as does good cooking, but the result is surely worth it.

Prove for yourself what Controlled Roasting does. Open a tin of Hills Bros. What an aroma! Drink a cup . . . flavor beyond compare!

Ask for Hills Bros. by name and look for the Arab on the can. Read how to make a perfect cup of coffee in "The Art of Entertaining." A copy of this booklet will be sent you free. Address Hills Bros., 1104 Union Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

What Nodaway County Churches Are Doing

The Boy Who Made Dreams Come True

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for November 28, 1926.
Read Judges 1 to 8.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

Once upon a time there was a young man who was a dreamer. His father was a farmer and was poor and his people were in great straits. They were obliged to hide in caves. Stronger tribes had robbed them of their cattle and their growing crops. Everybody was afraid and the men, women and children ran and hid at the first alarm.

There was nothing unusual about this young man whose name was Gideon. He came of a good family and had a good mother. He was trained in the history of his people and believed in God. He was greatly puzzled over the situation. How did it happen that the God, whom he had been taught to love and revere and whom he believed to be all powerful, should permit his people to be reduced to such woe and poverty.

Gideon's job was to flail out the grains of wheat from the little saved after the robbers had taken all they could gather. There was and old wine press on the farm and Gideon's father carried the slender store into the dark building and here, hidden away, the boy Gideon worked and dreamed.

Gideon remembered the glory of his people for he belonged to the tribe of Manasseh and was an Israelite. He flailed out the wheat and thought about the glorious history of his people beginning with Abraham. Then he came down to later history. His mother had told him about the great Joshua who had always won in battle. When Joshua died the people were leaderless. Every tribe was for itself. They accepted the division Joshua had made, and came into contact with the people who lived in the land.

Gideon recalled the story of Othniel, the younger brother of Caleb, who led the Israelites so successfully. Then he thought about Ehud the left handed man who killed King Eglon. He laughed a little as he thought about the fat King Eglon and how Ehud shoved his sword through the king until the fat covered the handle. Gideon stopped work a moment and made motions, using his flail as a sword and a bundle of wheat as Eglon. He was thinking about how he would like to meet the king of teh Midianites.

Then Gideon's eyes softened a little as he remembered the story of Deborah, the woman whose great courage heartened the fighter Barak and whose wit won freedom and peace for her people for 40 years. He remembered how Jael the wife of Heber drove a tent pin through the temples of King Sisera and gave peace to the harrassed tribes for 47 years.

Now the Israelites were in hard case again. The Midianites had swarmed over their boundaries. They had robbed them of their cattle. They waited until the crops were ready to harvest and then took the grain and laughed at the owners. For seven years this had been going on. As Gideon thought about these things he gritted his teeth and beat the straw into dust under his flail.

Then he began to wonder what could be done about it. He remembered that in the square of the little village there was an altar to Baalim, the God of the people of the country and that his people worshipped Baalim instead of Jehovah. His dreaming hardened into purpose and the next night he tore down the altar of Baal and erected an altar to God.

The people were very angry. His own people they were. Gideon's father stopped the storm by suggesting that if Baal was a God he would resent this sacrilege and punish Gideon. This seemed reasonable and they left it to Baalim. But nothing happened to Gideon and he became bolder. He dreamed and schemed and finally rallied together the young men of the nation and proposed a plan.

Gideon's plan was very simple. The midianites were camped not far away. They had chariots and horses and camels and their camp was loaded with spoils. Gideon figured that if he could surprise them and scare them he could destroy them. And it worked out so. Read the story telling how Gideon selected his famous band of 300, how he divided them into companies of one hundred each. He armed them with dark lanterns and swords and clubs. At the dark hour just before dawn the Midianites were startled by loud shouting, they wakened to see hundreds of twinkling lights on every side and to feel the weight of weapons wielded by strong men. They fought one another in their panic and fear drove them into greater fear.

Gideon gathered his men and completed the slaughter and Israel was once more free and peaceful. The boy flailing a scanty store of wheat in a dark room so he could be hidden had dreamed a dream and the dream had come true.

Many a great general who has hurled armies against armies and who has won victories of world wide importance is forgotten. His deeds of valor are not even recorded in history. But the name of Gideon and what he did is familiar to every Sunday school student. More than that. All over this land when you go to a hotel, in each room you will find on the dresser a Bible and printed on the back is Gideon's name. An organization of Christian men have taken this name and faith and are helping to carry the torch against the Midianites.

Sometimes it seems to us that God has forgotten us. We see wrong triumphant, we hear men preach graft and wrong and wars and oppression and laugh at God. Some of us are sometimes discouraged. It is good for us then to read how God worked out the selvation of these Israelitish tribes and made of them a great nation and through this nation brought to us Christianity.

There is always a Gideon somewhere, a well trained boy who has been rightly taught at his mother's knee, who knows his Bible, who dreams dreams and who will made them come true.

Many times it has seemed mighty dark to us, Christianity has been often hidden in an abandoned wine press. A study of history will show that God alawys raises up the leader and the people and His teachings emerge stronger than ever before.

During recent months I have traveled through Italy, France and England. In Italy the people seem afraid, under a gloomy pall, furtive and jumpy. In France they made me think of the words "eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we die." In England, a grand and sturdy people grimly stand by their homes and government and hold the line.

I wondered if the spiritual empire of the world which started at Ur and passed to Ninevah and Rome, through the reformation, to England had not passed to the United States. I wondered if we of the United States were ready for the responsibility, ready to answer the call of God and take our pitchers hiding the torches and make a brave and irresistible stand for Christianity.

I believe that a testing time is near for us. We are facing the strongest drive of evil forces ever faced by any nation. Our cities are already out of hand. Unhallowed hands are reaching for our government which has so far never fallen into such hands. The crisis may come at the next presidential election.

Are we ready to enlist and fight for God and Gideon.

GIDEON AND THE THREE HUNDRED.

Lesson Text.—Judges 7:4-8, 19-21.
Read Judges 7:1-25

1. Then Jerubbaal, who is Gideon, and all the people that were with hom rose up early, and pitched beside the well of Harod; so that the host of the Midianites were on the north side of them, by the hill of Moreb, in the valley.

2. And the Lord said unto Gideon, the people that are with thee are too many for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel vaunt themselves against me, saying, Mine own hand hath saved me.

3. Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, Whosoever is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from mount Gilead. And there returned of the people twenty and two thousand; and there remained ten thousand.

4. And the Lord said unto Gideon, The people are yet too many; bring them down into the water, and I will try them for thee there; and it shall be, that of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.

5. So he brought down the people unto the water; and the Lord said unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink.

6. And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men; but all the rest of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

Gideon and the Three Hundred.

Determined to end the Midianites' depredations, Gideon assembled thirty two thousand warriors. He encamped on a mountain above the valley of Jezreel, where he could overlook the enemy's army numbering about one hundred and thirty five thousand men.
But Jehovah feared that the Israelites might take credit for a victory rather than ascribe it to Him, so He ordered Gideon to proclaim that all who feared the outcome might depart. Only ten thousand men remained faithful.
Still this was too many so Jehovah commanded the leader to select those who took water in their cupped hands and lapped it when they drank at the river. By this elimination, the leader found himself with but three hundred.
In the dead of night, Gideon led forth the faithful three hundred. Each man carried a trumpet and torch covered by a pitcher. At a signal, all broke their pitchers, and while their torches flared, blew loudly on their trumpets. Thinking a vast horde attacked them, the Midianites fled.

Campus Rebels

AIEA FICTION SYN. ©1926 N E A SERVICE INC.

by Virginia Swain

ERIC WATERS, senior, and DR. PE JUDITH MARTIN, young college teacher, is admired by DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, and ERIC WATERS, rebel senior.

Judith defends Eric against the accusation of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN that Eric has been involved with "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, in selling liquor from which two students have died.

Judith discovers a secret love affair of the dean's wife and sympathizes with the woman.

MYRA ALDRICH, in love with Eric, and favored by his mother, is jealous of Judith.

Judith receives a telephone call from Mrs. Timothy Brown and meets her at a tea shop. There Mrs. Brown says that the dean believes Judith spent a week-end in the city with Eric and means to ask the board to dismiss her.

If Mrs. Brown dared to say that she also was in the city and knew that Judith was alone at the hotel it would clear Judith but give away her own clandestine meeting with her lover.

Judith refuses to accept the sacrifice.

"Kitty" Shea leers at Judith when she steps to the cashier's desk to pay the bill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"Gimme," said somebody, taking the bill out of her hand, and Judith looked up into the bland, mouse-colored eyes of Will Wetherel.

She saw Shea watching his as he paid the bill and turned her back on the little peering eyes and the black jowl. Wetherel grasped her arm and walked with her out of the cafe.

"I see you've already had food," he said, as they turned toward college. "Therefore I shall ask you to lunch with me. And I shall take you to the Prairie Schooner, where you can't possibly eat up more than a dollar, even if you're hungry."

"Why the prodigious generosity?" laughed Judith.

Wetherel flicked the ashes from his six-inch cigaret. "Well, Judith, pay day doesn't come till next week. And I vowed last Tuesday I'd not spend another cent this term stuffing little gold diggers with chocolate dreams and chicken salad."

"Is this a declaration of independence?" asked Judith.

"Just exactly that," said Will "I'm tired of belonging to the Flapper Feeder Fraternity. Happen to know that in certain select sorority circles I am known as a Good Provider."

"Still," said Judith, "You've never wasted much of your hard earned gold on me."

"Nope," Wetherel nodded, "you're a good fellow. One doesn't have to."

They passed the administration building and followed the little graveled path that led to the Schooner.

"Sliced tomatoes with caviar," ordered Judith; "rolls and a mousse Madeleine."

She looked defiantly at Will. He grinned. "All right," he said. "I guess you've got it coming to you. Do your worst." He leaned back and looked at Judith through lazy eyelids. "Look here, Judith, what ever made you take up teaching?"

Judith considered. "General depravity, I suppose. You see I belong to the race of monsters that really get a kick out of Latin verse."

Wetherel shrugged. "Can't see how you get that way, with Whitman and Sandburg and Masters in the verse market. But we'll let that pass. A love for Latin isn't a hanging offense—though it will hamper your social successes. But what I can't understand is how you put up with the limitations placed on teachers. I suppose you know you may get kicked out of school for siding with Waters in the dean's meeting yesterday."

Judith looked at him anxiously. "Do you really think the dean could dismiss me simply for expressing a personal belief in Eric's story?"

Wetherel shook his head. "Not for that. But if he wants your scalp he'll get it, one way or another. By the way, what did your friend Dorn do about it? Did he back you up?"

"Well," said Judith, "he followed me out of the meeting. He doesn't approve of what I do, but I guess he approves of me." She dimpled.

Wetherel nodded. "Well, he may be able to save you then. He's Brown's right-hand man. Never could understand it myself. Dorn's a good scout underneath."

The Schooner was filling with students. Wetherel surveyed the crowd gloomily. "Damn mannequins," he said. "All alike. Mob rule. No chance for individuality. No feeling for the picturesque. Look at those drab, colorless figures, all out of a mold."

Judith looked up from her mousse Madeleine. "Has someone been kidding your riding suit again, Will?"

He started at his plate. Suddenly he uttered an exclamation. "Look over there," he said. Judith followed his gaze.

Dr. Dorn was sitting at a table across the room in eager conversation with a girl. When the girl turned her head Judith saw that she was Myra Aldrich.

"Evidently Dorn approves of several of you women," said Wetherel, easingly. "Didn't know Aldrich was in his line."

Judith laughed. "You're a hopeless gossip," she said to Will. "Can't a man take a girl to lunch without being in love with her?"

"Don't fool yourself," answered Wetherel. "Men don't take maiden aunts—their own or other people's—to lunch. Not even men like Dorn. Take it from a veteran lunch buyer. And don't think you'd be stowing away my dollar caviar AND my sixty-cent mousse Madeleine if I only admired your mentality or your morals. It's that glad hair and the come-hither in your eyes that brings home the lunches. I speak for your future guidance."

"Thanks," said Judith, laying down her napkin. "This was a very good lunch at any rate. I shall remember the come-hither next time I'm hungry."

Wetherel was counting out nickels and dimes. "Try to be hungry about the second or third of the month next time, dearie," he grumbled. "Why will all the girls reduce in their boarding houses and stuff in the restaurants?"

"Ask me another one. That's too easy," laughed Judith.

Wetherel saw Eve Gerhart beckoning to him and made a hasty excuse to Judith. While he was gone Miss Angela Snow, dean of women, entered the Schooner. Judith had met her several times.

Seeing Judith, Miss Snow made straight for her table. She was smiling a broad, friendly smile. "My dear," she said as Judith rose, "I want to tell you that I admired your stand in meeting yesterday. It was a brave—a rash thing to do. But we older ones sometimes like to see the young foolhardy. It brings back our own youth."

Her face became more serious. "I also want to warn you that trouble may come of it. I hear Dean Brown was highly incensed. However, I believe, with you, that young Waters is innocent and in a showdown you may count on me."

"Thank you," said Judith, grasping Miss Snow's hand. There was no time to say more, for Wetherel came swaggering back, and, seeing him, Miss Snow passed on to her table.

When they stepped out into the pathway Dr. Dorn and Myra were just behind them. They heard Myra say "Goodby," and saw her turn off toward the biology building. Dr. Dorn walked slowly down the path alone.

Wetherel turned to Judith. "Lord! I forgot that French quiz. I must run along and learn three pages of translation by heart before one o'clock."

They went on down the path until they overtook Dr. Dorn. "Run along, Will," said Judith. "I'll walk toward home with Dr. Dorn. I think he goes my way."

The professor turned and met her smile with a sober face. He raised his hat and spoke stiffly. "I'm sorry, Miss Martin, but I shall have to walk very fast. I have an appointment." He struck into a vigorous pace and went off.

"Whew!" whistled Will. "So the professor 'approves of you,' does he? Wonder how he'd act if he disapproved! For a man making an appointment, he was walking blamed slowly before we caught up with him."

Judith turned on him. "Will, you are the worst specimen of blunderer and tactless dolt that ever I encountered in my checkered career." She turned on her heel and walked away.

In the middle of the afternoon Myra came into Judith's room, her arms full of chrysanthemums. Judith lifted her head from the interminable freshman themes with a frown at the interruption.

"Don't scowl, Jude," cried the girl. "I've brought you half of my flowers. You can have all the bronze ones to match your hair." She began to pull them apart so that the leaves scattered over the table. Judith bit her lips and said nothing.

But Myra rattled on. "You can't guess where I got 'em. No use to try. That darling Dr. Dorn bought 'em for me when I met him by the florist's ship just now. He said he never could withstand flowers."

Myra giggled. "That young man is not so slow. I offered him my hand when we parted. And believe you me! he held it a long time, looking into my eyes. I could vamp him if I wanted to."

"Could you?" said Judith. But the words were less of a question than a dismissal. Myra, seeing her turn back to the freshman papers tiptoed out of the room.

For three days Judith opened her mail each morning in nervous haste. But no summons arrived from Dean Brown or from the board.

On the fifth day Judith tried to reach Mrs. Brown by telephone. She was not at home and Judith left the telephone to meet her Horace class.

The elder Reasey was starting, as usual, "Oh ship of state," she droned, bending her thick spectacles over the Latin. Judith nodded, and, walking up with a little jerk, caught Eric's amused eyes upon her.

"That will do, Miss Reasey," she said crisply. "Mr. Waters, please finish the ode."

Spitefully, Eric gave a perfect translation and closed the book with a small flourish. The three o'clock bell was ringing.

Leaving the classroom five minutes later, Judith saw somebody step out of the shadowy corner of the hall. The dean's wife came up to her.

"I've been waiting for you," she said tensely. "We've got to do something."

"The dean?" questioned Judith.

But Mrs. Brown shook her head. "No, he's lying low. I made him drop the attack on you. This is even worse."

"It's 'Kitty' Shea. He knows what we talked about in the restaurant. He came to me for hush money."

(To Be Continued.)

Judith is in need of help, and after that rebuff by Dr. Dorn, Eric is the one she turns to.

Cal Bradley Takes Own Life With .22 Rifle

Bedford, Ia., Nov. 26.—One of the most surprising tragedies in Taylor county came about Wednesday morning when the report went out that Cal. Bradley had shot himself.

Mr. Bradley had been in very poor health for some time. In fact, Dr. Maloy reports Mr. Bradley in his office the night before, and he stayed all night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brice in Bedford. He went home Wednesday morning, and with his wife was listening to the radio. Suddenly he jumped to his feet and left the house. Next Mrs. Bradley heard the report of a rifle shot. She rushed out to the smoke house and there he lay with the rifle across his chest. She called for neighbors. This was about 9 o'clock. The coroner, Dr. Gasson, was also called and Mr. Bradley lived until 2:30 in the afternoon. He rallied enough at one time to lead them to believe that he was going to recover.

The bullet entered his head near the temple and lodged in the top of his skull, a .22 calibre bullet.

He was 52 years old, and leaves a wife.

This and That

Dr. Jesse Miller, Maryville dentist and president of the State Teachers College Board of Regents, attended his fourteenth straight Thanksgiving football game yesterday.

Aside from all other reasons, Dr. Miller went to this game because it is the fourteenth straight year that one of his sons has been playing football.

"There hasn't been a Turkey Day game for fourteen years in which one of the boys did not play," he commented.

All of the Miller boys, Jesse, Paul, and Harold, have played football. The last named played left halfback in the Maryville-Tarkio game yesterday.

Yesterday's football game marked the eighth time this season that teams of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association and the Missouri College Union have met on the gridiron. And in each one of these meetings the schools of the Teachers College conference have been victorious.

One game wouldn't make a rule, but eight straight seem to testify that one conference is decidedly superior. And Maryville's team plays in that conference.

The H. L. Raines store celebrated its twenty-first birthday yesterday.

D. E. Thompson of Middlesboroough, Ky., telephoned his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Thompson, to give Thanksgiving greetings. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were able to hear their son clearly over the 950 miles of wire. He also sent a fifteen-pound turkey as a Thanksgiving gift. The bird arrived yesterday at noon.

Fitch Takes The Sham Out of Shampoo

OH, BOY! There's a delightful, refreshing, cleansing kick in a FITCH SHAMPOO! The Fitch Shampoo dissolves and removes from the very first application every particle of dandruff and foreign matter, leaving the scalp clean and healthy and the hair soft and fluffy.

The tonic in the Fitch Shampoo actually penetrates into every hair follicle, thereby invigorating the growth of hair. The lather is then gradually created by the application of water and, when rubbed out and rinsed, the lather carries with it all dirt, dandruff and foreign matter, leaving every pore open and functioning as nature intended.

AFTER THE SHAMPOO, there is a FITCH TONIC for every hair and scalp condition! If the scalp has been sore and blotchy, use FITCH'S IDEAL. If your hair is inclined to be oily, use FITCH'S QUININE or FITCH'S TONIQUE SUPERBE. (Both are astringent and antiseptic.) If you want the hair to lie in place, use FITCH'S LA FOMA.

Why They Parted

"I was down with pain in my right side which at times almost crazed me. Most all of the doctors said operation. But what I want to tell you is the pain disappeared with the first dose of your medicine and I never felt any since. MAYR'S has the right name—gas, sour stomach and dyspepsia have left, too." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at all druggists.—Adv.

BEARCATS IN A SWAN SONG

S. T. C. ELEVEN TURNS IT INTO A PAEAN OF VICTORY.

TARKIO DOWNED, 41-0

Willoughby, O'Banion And Hartman Form Trio Taking Advantage Of Opportunity To Star.

The State Teachers College Bearcats warbled their swan song yesterday. It was an artists' concert recital, and those well versed in musical lore say it was replete with triple-tongue and everything else which goes along with outstanding music. And there wasn't any static.

This Bearcat swan song was written in 41-0 time. That means that there were forty-one notes to the measure, and we are told that the measure was four quarters long. A Tarkio football team was the audience.

Considering the fact that roadsides all around Maryville were populated yesterday with automobiles which had no little difficulty in staying in the ruts, the crowd which witnessed this last football game of the year was representative. Few students who went home Wednesday were able to return for the annual Tarkio game, and the crowd of spectators was made up largely of Maryville residents and those who were fortunate enough to slide into town with all four tires on the roadway.

Spectacular In Spots.

The fact that the game was all one-sided was greatly overcome by spectacular bits of football which made the whole contest worth while and enjoyable. It was a good day for football and the College field was in fine shape. A thoughtful bit of scraping when the gridiron was covered with snow was the secret. While the white blanket was melting into the ground around the playing field, the chalk-marked lot was getting the benefit of sun and wind, and consequently it was fairly fast and not at all disagreeable yesterday.

But the game! This was the final one of the season for the College Bearcats. It was the eleventh annual meeting with the Tarkio eleven. The score in games is now even. Each team has won five games, and the odd contest resulted in a tie.

Maryville was the better team yesterday—about forty-one points the better team. Tarkio had an abundance of pep but not enough power, and that's the secret of the whole thing. The most enjoyable factor in the whole business, however, is that it was a clean game and it was not the kind of football which marked the meetings between the two schools years ago. There were few penalties, and it seemed that there was not a single case of intentional roughness.

Three Share Honors.

All of the players who cavorted for the Green and White yesterday played well, but the greatest glory is shared equally between three men, two backs and a lineman. And the greater glory is there because the breaks came their way. From the manner in which the whole team was playing, any three men might have shared in these honors.

The brunt of the Maryville offense fell on the shoulders of that stout-hearted French-Canadian, Harold R. O'Banion. "Bun" was the Bearcat battering ram. His line plunges also netted for Maryville a total of 95½ yards, and his passes resulted in completition of 92 more yards of gain. O'Banion was at his best. Minus stocking all the time and without a headgear most of it, he ploughed away all of the time and won for himself a place in the hearts of all lovers of driving football.

Second of the triumverate—and second one only because O'Banion's name popped into the mind of the writer first—was that human dynamo, "Weenie" Willoughby, Maryville quarterback. "Weenie" started his drive to fame early in the first quarter when he caught a Tarkio punt on his 18-yard line and raced 82 yards to the first touchdown of the game. This marker came when the Maryville team was instantly galvanized from defensive action to the offense and broke rapidly to form interference for the diminutive quarterback. Miller and Hartman figured prominently in the touchdown. The former did a nice bit of spiking in midfield, and Hartman played a combination of tag and run-sheep-run with the Tarkio safety.

Runs Team Faultlessly.

The long run for a touchdown was spectacular, but "Weenie" won his cheverons by the masterful manner in which he guided his team. Never had he called signals so headily, never had he diagnosed the opposing team so accurately.

Willoughby figured well in the Maryville passing game. He was on the receiving end of several flips which totaled 70 yards of gain. And at safety he was peerless.

The other satelite was "Happy" Hartman, Maryville tackle, whose bare head was at the bottom of the majority of Tarkio spills, and who was on the ball all of the time. He it was who broke through the Tark line and recovered a fumble on a backward pass. "Happy" stumbled as he took the bauble, stumbled some more after he got it, but finally gained his feet and carried the pigskin 31 yards to the 1-foot line before he was downed. Then the third quarter ended.

But "Happy" was not to be denied his touchdown. He went into the backfield and in two plays carried the oval across the last white marker for his touchdown.

Thrills—For Maryville.

There were thrills a-plenty in the game—for the Maryville fans. For example—the crowd was brought to its feet in the third quarter when "Red" Berst captured an elusive pass from O'Banion and raced for a touchdown. The distance was 53 yards. And this touchdown would not have been had it not been for a pretty piece of interference on the part of "Shucks" Graham, Maryville center.

Figures on the game show that Tarkio didn't have a chance. Maryville made 206 yards from scrimmage; Tarkio made 37. Maryville completed nine passes for 152 yards; Tarkio connected with five for 52 yards. Maryville made nineteen first downs; Tarkio made three. Maryville lost 2 yards; Tarkio lost 31 yards. Maryville was penalized 30 yards; Tarkio was set back 35 yards. And that's the game.

But—how about "Ikey" Eads, the Maryville captain, who was on the sidelines suffering from a broken shoulder? Oh, "Ikey" was in there. He went in after a touchdown once and booted the extra point. And he stayed in for the kick-off. Later he went in and tried a field goal from the 36-yard line. It was short. And once "Ikey" came trotting on the field after a Maryville pass had been ruled incomplete. But "Ikey" trotted right off again because the pass was grounded behing the goal line. He wasn't going to take a chance with his shoulder. But he got to play in the last game of his last year just the same.

The officiating was good. "Tad" Reid, the Warrensburg coach, worked well with the [illegible]tle and Robertson knew how to use the umpire's horn. Whiteman of Warrensburg was headlinesman.

He gives two performances. At 2:30 p. m. he will give a lecture recital and at 8 p. m. his concert recital.

February 18th
On February 18, Jean Gros and his French marionettes will be the attraction. In the world of marionettes Gros is supreme. The company will present two screamingly funny puppet plays, "The Adventures of Uncle Wiggily" at 2:30 p. m. and "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" at 8 p. m.

March 11th
On March 11, the most outstanding of all organizations of its kind is the Cherniavsky Trio, composed of three brothers, a violinist, a pianist and a 'cellist. The popularity of these players is worldwide.

March 28 and 31
Dr. Richard Burton, author, playright, critic, will be at the College on March 28 and 31. On the first night he will deliver a lecture on "A Neighbor's View of Mark Twain," and the second night he will speak on "Bernard Shaw at Seventy." Dr. Burton is truly one of the most popular lecturers of the day and Maryville people are fortunate in securing this speaker.

May 3, 4, 5 and 6
The Music Festival will include: Conservatory of Music graduates in concert on May 3, College musical organizations in concert on May 4, and opera on May 5, and the feature of the festival on May 6.
This festival feature will be Merle Alcock, contralto with the Metropolitan Opera Company. Miss Alcock has made plans for a concert tour next spring and we are fortunate indeed in being able to arrange our program so that she may be the feature of the Music Festival.

SEASON TICKETS
Season tickets will be good for all Music Festival and Artists' Concert numbers.
These season tickets may be bought for three dollars. If one were to pay single admission prices for all of the numbers of the program, he would spend in the neighborhood of seven dollars. So you can see what a reduction is being made to holders of season tickets. There will be no sale of Music Festival tickets next Spring.
In case you buy a season ticket, you may take it to Kuchs Brothers for a season reserved seat, free of charge.
All season tickets are transferable.
